SCHOOL OF LAW

Prof. Dr. Bintan R. Saragih, S.H.
Dean of School of Law

MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

Indonesia's resurgence in the global economic and geopolitical arena, the emergence of ASEAN as an integrated community, the shifting balance of power towards Asia, and the global nature of trade and commerce demand a new mindset toward legal education.

School of Law at UPH is committed to prepare students for the challenges of the real world. Our programs are designed to prepare students for cross-border and cross-cultural commerce; to adapt to rapidly evolving laws, and to ensure that graduates are equipped with solid legal fundamentals and the capacity to fulfil the specialized needs of their chosen expertise.

Lawyers of the twenty-first century will form the backbone of our nation, so our School of Law is committed to preparing students who will lead in this Indonesian transformation. Thanks to our global team of distinguished faculty, experienced practitioners and legal experts, our graduates are uniquely positioned to understand both complex theoretical frameworks and to gain practical insights into the reality of legal practice.

We encourage and welcome you to be a part of this program.

SCHOOL OF LAW

School of Law offers the following concentrations in both English and Indonesian. Each concentration requires students to complete a total of 144 credit units [sks].

Regular & Full English Program

Degree:

Sarjana Hukum
(S.H.)

Legal Practice Proficiency

This program is thoughtfully constructed to provide extensive and rigorous training for students pursuing a career in litigation and other legal professions. An integral part of the program is the practical training that provides students with professional skills and a conceptual framework for their legal studies.

Business Law

Business Law caters to students pursuing a career in the broad area of corporate law. The curriculum combines strong fundamental theory with practice and research in many fields. The challenging courses include Commercial Law, Banking Law, Intellectual Property Rights, and a wide range of specific courses, including Capital Market, Bankruptcy Law, Contract Law, Consumer Protection Law.

International Law

This concentration offers comprehensive international law courses to equip students to pursue careers as lawyers with international standards and diplomats. The curriculum equips students with skills and knowledge related to various international law issues such as International Public Law, International Trade Law, International Treaties, along with other challenging subjects.

"Education should not merely be transfer of knowledge, but also skills and values, which are equally critical in building one's career. I believe UPH realizes this as reflected in its commitment to provide holistic education to all its students. My experience at the School of Law reassured me of such commitment. Prof. Bintang R. Saragih, the Dean of School of Law, always encourages and supports his students to excel. I could feel his support when I participated in International Law Moot Court Competitions."

"Attending the Law Faculty at UPH Medan has been the most stimulating time of my life. The Law Faculty has provided me with opportunity to explore an array of different possibilities for my future, most of which I would not have been aware of without attending. Having the opportunity to interact with practitioners on a daily basis have given me insight to advanced legal analysis in practically useful way. The lecturers really challenge your thinking, give great feedback and my fellow classmates have been an inspiration for me."

"What is purpose? What is knowledge? These are the questions that are being asked by all Students and people during their life. Life is series of choices and it is important where we make our choices and stand our ground to be ready in life. By being in UPHS I have learned not only quality to be professional, but the quality of being a man. It teach us knowledge, wisdom, and communication. These set of skills helped me when I handle cases and communicate with clients."
