EXPLORE GLOBAL PERSPECTIVES THROUGH INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS AT UPH

The International Relations program is all about understanding how global politics, trade, diplomacy, and security function. It provides students with a solid academic foundation, along with hands-on experiences, to tackle real-world issues. Since its inception in 2005 and achieving an “Unggul” accreditation in 2025, the program has become a reliable choice for many. Students have the opportunity to choose their final project based on their interests, whether that involves writing a thesis, completing an internship, or contributing to a publication.

There are three concentrations you can focus on that align with today’s world’s needs. The International Trade track explores economics, global markets, and policies, providing a solid foundation for those seeking careers in diplomacy, large corporations, or international organizations. The ASEAN and Southeast Asian Studies track examines regional politics, culture, and development, with a special focus on ASEAN’s increasing global influence. If you’re interested in peacebuilding, political risk, and human rights, the Corporation and International Security track explores conflict resolution and international collaboration. Each option provides you with both theoretical knowledge and practical experience, preparing you for careers that have a tangible impact on the world stage.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE

DEGREE

Sarjana Sosial (S.Sos)

The International Trade concentration within the International Relations program equips students to understand the global economy and the interplay of trade, politics, and economics. With a blend of theory and practical learning, students analyze complex global issues, is ideal for those aspiring to work in diplomacy, trade analysis, or global NGOs, providing the knowledge, skills, and connections necessary for success in international business and policy. This track prepares future leaders to navigate the dynamic landscape of global commerce confidently.

ASEAN AND SOUTHEAST ASIAN STUDIES

DEGREE

Sarjana Sosial (S.Sos)

The ASEAN and Southeast Asian Studies concentration gives students a great chance to explore the region's history, culture, politics, and economy. It focuses on ASEAN's rising influence globally, encouraging students to see Southeast Asia as a key player in international matters. This program is ideal for those aiming to become diplomats, researchers, or work in NGOs. It's more than just memorizing facts; students are pushed to think critically about real-world issues and develop ideas for the region's future. Overall, this track prepares students to make a real impact in Southeast Asia on a global scale.
